

In environmental matters the Federal government sets minimum standards and the States can adopt those standards or set higher standards not lower limits. It should be the same with the "do not call" standards. The Federal government sets the minimum and, should the residents of the state desire, the state can set tougher limits. The residents of Wisconsin want our tougher "do not call" limits!